In this letter we can only refer to a few of the many bad and far-reaching bills that desperate efforts are now being made to push through.

The Loud Bill is one of the most insidious and infamous measures that ever crossed the thre-hold of Congress. The bill was slipped through the House with very little discussion, and with scarcely no information to the public as to its na-ture and effects. This bill is now before the Senate Committee on Offices and Post Roads. Senator Buthas been making a vigorous and unremitting fight in the committee trying to prevent it being reported to the Senate. If a majority of the committee shall vote against him and report it to the Senate, he and a number of
